See her danc - ing 'round in cir - cles, a pir - ou - ette from day to day Who nev - er hears the mus - ic, be - cause it seems the saf - est way.
For the par - ty will soon be o - ver, and the clown will put a - side, the make - up and the laugh - ter, and lock them deep in - side. As ev' - ning drifts to morn - ing and the waltz be - gins to slow, she waits for a door to op - en, out of which she'll go. She'll tell her - self she's happ - y as she shuts the door be - hind, but she'll wish she'd faced the mus - ic when truth's song plays on her mind.
And the clown will laugh new laugh - ter to hide his sil - ent song of sad - ness for the danc - er who would - n't sing a - long.
